More Officers and Higher Pay Increases Public Safety Budget

by Diane Oberg

The city's Public Safety budget, the largest in the city, is getting larger. City Manager Michael McLaughlin proposes to increase the budget by 16 percent for Fiscal Year 2008, which starts July 1, raising it from the current 39.9 percent of total city expenditures to 41.9 percent. Under McLaughlin's proposal, two new officers and two cadets would be added to the payroll, officers would receive the seven percent raise established through collective bargaining and dispatchers would be reclassified to a higher grade.

The two new officers, however, will be funded by Greenbelt Metropark LLC for this year but the city will pick up the cost in future years. On April 28, council met with representatives of the Police Department and the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad to discuss their budgets.

Under the collective bargaining agreement, in addition to the pay raise, more officers living away from Greenbelt will be eligible to take their patrol cars home (estimated cost $50,000) and be paid for more accumulated leave ($34,700). The budget also provides for nine new police cars (one for a new officer and others as replacement vehicles) and a computer-aided dispatch system.

Two large expenditures are not funded in the budget. One is a new National Capital Region Interoperable Radio communications system. The other is an upgrade to the mobile data computers in officers' patrol cars.

Sergeant Marty Parker described the communication system to council, estimating the projected cost to the city at $653,400. Parker noted that Prince George's County is picking up all research, development and infrastructure costs. None of the city's equipment, including officers' radios and the system consoles, are compatible with the new system.

Since all municipal police forces in the state will be facing the need to upgrade, Parker suggested that assistance from the state legislature would be helpful. The switch over to the new system is scheduled to occur over 12 months (July 2008 through June 2009). Mayor Judith Davis noted that if the state does not come up with some funds, "This is a big chunk of change."

Sergeant David Buerger discussed the Mobile Data Computer issues. After praising the work of the IT staff under city Treasurer Jeff Williams, Buerger told council that the laptops currently used by officers are in bad shape. He said he would like to replace all the laptops, which are being used more and more to check vehicle tags, to communicate with other officers and to tap into databases such as the Nationwide Crime Information Center and the state and sheriff's databases.

All patrol staff have mobile data computers, as do a few other officers. Buerger would like to replace the machines with toughened units built for the kind of wear and tear police machines are subject to. He said that no funds were budgeted for computer replacement this year.

Williams noted that $10,000 to

Small Budget Increase Funds Rec. Programs

by Thomas X. White

The Greenbelt City Council continued its review of the city manager's proposed budget for Fiscal Year 2008 with the sixth budget work session on Monday, April 30 devoted to the activities, accomplishments and plans for the city's Recreation Department. Considering this broad range of programs, the proposed increase of 2 percent in the department's budget is only nominal.

The proposed expenditures by the department for FY08 are projected to be $4,669,100, $79,300 more than was budgeted in Fiscal Year 2007 and only $45,100 more than the department's expected actual expenditures. When that nominal increase is spread among the various programs, the actual increases for individual recreation programs are either quite small or in some cases actually less than was expended in the current fiscal year.

For example, the Aquatic and Fitness Center will be operating next year for about $56,000 less than this year. Some of this decrease is due to the recent retirement of a long-tenured employee. The Community Center is also projected to operate with about $21,000 less than was budgeted last year. Most other programs, such as the recreation centers (three), therapeutic recreation, leisure and fitness and special events all have very small increases.

Largest Increase

The program area of the Recreation budget garnering the largest increase in funds over last year is the Parks budget, increasing by $83,000. Greenbelt Kids and the Arts programs follow, each increasing about $14,000. The Recreation Department will not add new positions for FY08.

With such a varied program, Recreation Director Hank Irving was joined at the worksession with several of the department's program supervisors to address any questions raised by council. Joe McNeal, the assistant director for Operations, has responsibility for the Community Center, the three recreation centers, parks and the Aquatic and Fitness Center.

Julie McHale, assistant director for Programs, has responsibility for therapeutic recreation, Greenbelt Kids, leisure and fitness, arts and special events.

Covering in their respective areas of expertise were Di Quynn-Reno, supervisor for the Community Center; Nicole DeWald, arts supervisor; Karen Haseley, therapeutic supervisor; Greg Varda, recreation coordinator; and Stephen Parks, the new supervisor for the Aquatic and Fitness Center.

All members of council were in attendance as well as City Manager Michael McLaughlin, Assistant City Manager David Moran and Jeff Williams, city treasurer. Members of the public attending were Sheldon Goldberg,

Greenbelters Get a Glimpse Of the Queen Visiting NASA

by Lynne Tucker

Greenbelt is no stranger to presidents and movie stars but early in the week the city added a new honor. Queen Elizabeth II and her husband Prince Phillip visited the NASA Goddard Space Flight Center on Tuesday, May 8 as part of their American tour commemorating the 400th anniversary of the Jamestown settlement. The overall theme of the royal tour was to honor the exploration of new frontiers, beginning with the pioneers at Jamestown and continuing with the explorers of the 21st century, the scientists and astronauts of NASA.

Goddard is a fitting stop on this journey of exploration as home to the largest collection of scientists and engineers in the United States dedicated to examination of the planet and its solar system. The queen's visit, which is historic as the first ever to the Goddard facility by a foreign head of state, also celebrates the cooperation between the United States and the United Kingdom on space exploration. NASA and the British National Space Center recently signed a joint agreement to collaborate on future exploration of the moon and beyond.

The queen's first stop during her visit to Goddard was Mission Control, where she had the opportunity to speak with the astronauts currently in residence aboard the International Space Station. The queen also attended an auditorium presentation with NASA employees, where she received a commemorative montage of photographs taken by the Hubble Telescope from House Majority Leader Steny Hoyer and Senator Barbara Mikulski. The queen's final stop was to plant a tree at the Goddard Visitor's Center in honor of Earth Day.

Her Majesty's visit to Goddard was very popular with the local Greenbelters, though few were lucky enough to receive an invitation. One such lucky person was Greenbelt's mayor, Judith Davis, who acted as "the eyes and ears for everyone in Greenbelt" that wanted to attend the ceremony. "It was a thrilling experience," she said. "The queen's visit focused some well deserved attention on Goddard but it also focused some very positive attention on Greenbelt." Larry Hull, longtime Greenbelter and NASA employee, watched as the queen's motorcade arrived at the Visitor's Center. He snapped a few pictures as she greeted children from the Goddard Child Development Center.

City Celebrates Spring At Annual SHL Event

by Jim Lara

On Saturday, April 28 the Greenbelt Recreation Department put together the annual Celebration of Spring, which was held at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center. Children were treated to a variety of activities such as music workshops, face painting, dance clinics, a moonbounce and a live band outside the recreation center. In addition hot dogs and sodas were served by the recreation staff.

Julie McHale, assistant program director for the Recreation Department, oversees all special events happening around Greenbelt. “This is the seventh year at Springhill Lake and everybody who came today had a great time,” she said. Credit was given to Recreation Supervisor Greg Varda, who organized the celebration and put the activities together.

Brian Butler, recreation coordinator at the center, brought his children to enjoy the festivities. He also helped Varda in deciding what games and activities children could participate in. “With what’s going on in the world, this type of atmosphere is a good distraction to put smiles on these children’s faces,” said Butler.

The one exercise that seemed to draw a crowd was the Zansa music workshop, which was new this year. The workshop introduced kids to the Zansa, which is another name for a lamellaphone. This instrument can create music with strips of metal. Demonstrators showed how the instrument worked and the children were given an opportunity to create their own. Each child had a wooden soundboard along with the metal strips that act as keys. Besides constructing their instruments, they could decorate them with markers and colored pencils.

Ikeme Demessae, an instructor at the workshop, was pleased at how the kids were such quick learners. “It was fun to teach them a little bit about African culture and expose them to a new world of music,” said Demessae. He has done workshops previously in Rhode Island, this was his first appearance in the Greenbelt area. He praised the recreation staff and said he would like to come back next year.

According to one visitor, the day went off as well as possible. Greenbelt Mayor Judith Davis stopped by and was impressed with how the recreation and arts department handled the spring event. “Despite the dreary weather today, it’s good to see people bring their kids and watch them enjoy themselves,” said Davis.

Other seasonal celebrations will be the Labor Day Festival in Old Greenbelt and the Fall Fest in October at Schrom Hills Park in Greenbelt East.

Aquatic Center Supervisor Enjoys His New Job Here

by Brian St. George

Greenbelt’s new Aquatic & Fitness Center Supervisor Steve Parks has a top-notch professional background in Recreation and Aquatic Services. An energetic quipster, he “hasn’t stopped moving since he started,” he says, on March 26. Parks takes over from George Rogala, who held the position for 31 years.

“George did a great job” Parks said. Parks was employed by the University of Maryland Recreation Services as Aquatic Manager and Lifeguard Coordinator from 1999 till 2007. While at Maryland he interacted with many international caliber swimmers and enjoyed the mix of running various programs as well as the Aquatics.

Prior to working at the University of Maryland, Parks had worked at several Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC) facilities in various roles. In this work he developed contacts that may prove beneficial to Greenbelt.

Parks graduated from Gannon University in Erie, Pa., with a BS in physical education and recreation management and an MS in health services administration. He played soccer at Gannon U. for three years and his team twice went to the Final Four. He also was assistant coach for the women’s soccer team during his graduate studies.

According to Parks, even though “Greenbelt’s facilities are older than (the University of) Maryland’s, the upkeep has been great and working with Shirley and Cheryl has been great” (Shirley Winter and Cheryl Conrad, aquatics coordinators). Parks wants to continue the high level of maintenance and service and work on some of the aesthetics of the facilities. He would like to see more Greenbelters coming down, “to see the place and enjoy the aquatics” and that “the whole recreation department works as one.”

Steve Parks

When I mentioned I had been thinking of joining for some time now, he replied that “Curves [for women only] is probably off the list.” Parks, along with his colleague Julie McHale, assistant director of programs, is interested in finding out what programs Greenbelt wants in a recreation center. He invites any ideas to be sent in an email.

Parks lives in Upper Marlboro with his wife of 11 years, Janet, a licensed clinical counselor and their two children, Jonathan (8 years old) and Kaitlin (5 years old).

A Trip to Jasper’s

Fifty-eight residents were treated to lunch at Jasper’s by the Green Ridge House Residents’ Association on Tuesday last week. Deciding on the choice of five entrees and desserts was the topic of conversation in the library for several days. Everyone enjoyed the outing and the food was great – for sure, no one left hungry!

A big “thank you” to our Social Director Theresa Slone for such a fabulous time. She is so well organized that the wait staff knew who ordered what entree and what dessert and everyone was served in an orderly and timely manner. The Association is planning more trips for the residents during the coming months – a trip to Fredericksburg to the dinner theater, a lunch cruise, etc.

We at Green Ridge House also would like to thank the City of Greenbelt for our beautiful grounds. The tulips, jonquils, cherry trees and magnolias are a sight to see. When one had spent its time another came to life. And to our neighbors, your yards too are beautiful and we want to thank you for making our walks so enjoyable. The small white and purple woods violets, the buttercups and dandelions on the hill going to Roosevelt Center are a delight. It is so nice just to sit on the benches and enjoy them growing in their natural habitat. One day they were missing, the lawn mower had mowed them down. That was sad. Then two days later they had popped up again just as beautiful!

Greenbelt is green, colorful and beautiful!

New Film Offers Paris Visit

Director Danièle Thompson (La Bûche) wrote the script for Avenue Montaigne with her son Christopher. The bittersweet comedy revolves around an actress, a pianist and a patron of the arts, the café they drink in and the waitress who serves them. The street named in the film’s title is home to the famous Théâtre des Champs Elysées, as well as the café where the characters meet.

Filmed on location in Paris, not far from the tunnel where Princess Diana’s fatal car accident occurred, Avenue Montaigne shows us people who have what they thought they wanted, seen through the eyes of one who wants what they have. This movie is rated PG-13 for strong language and mild sexual themes, runs 100 minutes and is in French with English subtitles.

STOP, LOOK and LISTEN

As we see the flowers bloom and trees turn green, it reminds us of the one who created the serene nature in perfect harmony. It is our job now to keep this harmony in our dealings as well, as the Creator reminds us: "The sun and the moon follow courses (exactly) computed; and the herbs and the trees bow in adoration. And the skies He (God) has raised high, and He has set up the balance (of justice), in order that you may not transgress due balance. So establish weight with justice and fall not short in the balance!" — The Holy Qur'an, 55:5-10

$40,000 in grant funds is available but that amount will replace only six or seven machines.

Chief James Craze again plugged the proposal to reinstate the cadet program. He noted that 40 percent of the city’s officers are eligible to retire within five years. Hiring young people as cadets, he said, gives the city a chance to look at the individuals and to mold them into what the city wants in its officers. It also gives the cadets a chance to get to know the city and its force.

Craze noted that several past cadets later became city police officers. Davis polled council and found that no one had concerns about adding two officers and two cadets this year.

Crime Statistics

Craze told council that reported crime in Greenbelt has fallen 27 percent over the past five years. However, crimes against persons have risen 15 percent over that time, driven by armed robberies, which increased 49 percent. More than half the city’s crime occurred in Greenbelt West (Springhill Lake, Beltway Plaza, Capital Office Park and the Greenbelt Metro property).

One factor for this increase, Craze said, is that the area has a large Hispanic population, many of whom are reluctant to use banks. And “the bad guys know it,” he said.

The police have had several citizen meetings in Springhill Lake to familiarize residents with the officers. The force has four or five Spanish-speaking officers.

Thefts of cars have declined 43 percent over five years, Craze said. Calls for service have dropped eight percent since 2005 but are still high, he said.

The city’s clearance rate for crimes in 2006 was 13 percent. Although that is up by three percent over 2005, Craze acknowledged that it is still low, in part due to a reluctance on the part of some crime victims to cooperate with police.

The city’s red light cameras resulted in fewer tickets than were projected this year, in part due to cameras being out of service during upgrades and in part due to increased compliance by drivers. The city’s costs for this program may increase, Craze noted, since Montgomery County has dropped out of the Howard Country program in which the city participates, leaving fewer jurisdictions to share the fixed costs. One of Craze’s management objectives for 2008 is to conduct a comprehensive review of the program.

Now that the police force has gained accreditation, it cannot rest on its laurels. Craze noted that he’s been told that it is harder to maintain than to obtain accreditation. The city will have to meet some 60 to 70 new standards when its accreditation expires.

In response to a question from Davis, McLaughlin said the city is still trying to work out the installation of video cameras in patrol cars. While he said the staff would prefer to roll out the upgraded mobile data computers first, council had directed him first to install video cameras (one per patrol squad) and he is working to accomplish that.

One potentially controversial item is what to do with officers’ existing weapons when new ones are purchased this year. The current budget sets aside $6,000 in the replacement fund for handgun replacement. Since the police department prefers to replace all handguns at the same time, he proposes to take that $6,000 plus $6,000 from 2008’s replacement fund plus the $20,000 budgeted but not used for police radios to fund a total force replacement.

McLaughlin said there were two options – to allow officers to buy their old weapons or to destroy them.

Sgt. Parker noted that 15 years ago, officers were allowed to purchase the weapons but the last time new weapons were purchased the old weapons were destroyed.

McLaughlin will bring up the issue to council for a decision in about a month or so, he said. However, three of the councilmembers present expressed a preference for destroying the replaced weapons.

Fire Department

McLaughlin proposed setting aside $57,000 to assist with the replacement of fire and rescue equipment. In the 2007 budget, council had boosted the contribution to $76,000 from the $55,000 set aside in 2006. McLaughlin proposed dropping back to the earlier level.

Representatives of the Greenbelt Fire Department and Rescue Squad met with council to discuss their needs. Chief Brian Rudy said the next piece of apparatus to be replaced is the 1999 pumper, scheduled for replacement in 2009. The projected cost is $450,000, with approximately $90,000 to be recouped by selling the 1999 truck, leaving a net cost of $360,000. McLaughlin said that in 2009, the fire and rescue reserve will have a balance of $191,000.

Rudy said the Department has dropped its goal of purchasing its own ambulance in recognition that it does not have sufficient funds to purchase both the pumper and an ambulance. He said the county will continue to provide the ambulance.

While the department made roughly a $200,000 profit from bingo in 2005, in 2006 the profit dropped almost 50 percent due to decreased attendance, according to former President Jay Remenick.

Rudy noted that the department has been approached by Verizon, which wants to place a cell tower on firehouse property. McLaughlin noted that the property is owned by the city and Davis said that council has a policy against allowing cell towers on city property.

Visual Montage

Reflecting the great variety in services and programs offered by the City’s Recreation Department, Irving used a visual “montage” of the people and facilities delivering recreational services to the citizens of Greenbelt intended to provide “the spirit and feeling for the Department’s programs” in the 10 budget accounts he is responsible for. Irving also noted the Department’s traditional reliance on volunteers in delivery of its programs. He estimated the dollar value of such volunteer support at nearly $1,000,000. Irving also noted a recent donation to the Department by the Greenbelt Lions Club to support training for the Aquatic & Fitness Center’s lifeguards.

Although council enjoyed the video highlights, they nonetheless went arduously through the nearly 11 pages of FY07 Accomplishments and the Issues and Services for FY08. This was their annual opportunity to ask a question on a particular program (the Quarterly Brochure), take special notice of a successful effort (working with PRAB and the Greenbelt Boys & Girls Club on organizational improvements), wonder about progress on the e-marketing and online registration initiatives and express appreciation for the restoration work being done on the original Community Center classroom doors.

Not exactly related to any particular budget account, councilmembers wondered why there were padded chairs in the Community Center Multipurpose Room but when they held work-sessions in classrooms on the first level, they had to sit on “hard metal chairs.”

Skateboard

With the recent opening of the new skateboard facility between the Community Center and the Youth Center, council was interested in how the facility has been operating. Staff noted there have been relatively few injuries thus far and that helmets are available if needed for anyone using the park.

Since park users are required to register with the Recreation Department in order to use the facility, staff has registered about 280 users since the park opened this spring. Eighty registrants are Greenbelt residents. When members of Council commented on the nonresident use, staff noted that many have been one-time users, skateboarders from practically everywhere who wish to try out the new facility and are not likely to be repeat users.

Mayor Judith Davis noted she is still seeing hard core skateboarders using parking lots and steps leading to Roosevelt Center. Apparently most park users do not attempt the deep bowl yet but some are trying it out and gaining experience with it. Its use should increase, they predict.

As council proceeded through the 10 accounts comprising the Recreation Department budget, similar questions about operations were raised but by the end of the evening no modifications to the budget were suggested.

Miscellaneous

When asked the status of the shed at Braden Field, staff responded that pre-cast concrete was being evaluated for that structure. Lau wondered about better starting platforms for competition meets at the Aquatics Center and staff offered to look into the problem.

Davis noted that the Greenbelt New Year celebration this year seemed to be more staff-driven and less volunteer organized than in previous years. Staff responded that actually there were more volunteers this year since community groups and organizations had been invited to host various programs throughout the Community Center.

Some members of council commented that their concerns about a better marketing effort for the Department’s programs apparently were being addressed by the variety of programs offered in new areas and by new ways of doing business. The counter side of that issue for some members of council is a concern regarding nonresident participation in the most popular recreation programs.

Staff assured council that the management of those programs allowed for advance sign-up for residents, the marketing is primarily directed to residents and there is a lower cost for sign-up for Greenbelt residents. Julie McHale also advised council that, for some programs, the non-resident use could make the difference in whether the program offering would be possible.

Playhouse Presents Grandmother Project

On Sunday, May 20 at 3 p.m., the Prince George’s Publick Playhouse will host a special performance of VT Dance Company’s Grandmother Project, selected as Outstanding New Work at the 2006 DC Metro DC Dance Awards. This piece involving 27 performers was staged by VT Dance’s artistic director Vincent E. Thomas. There is a fee.

The Grandmother Project shares the stories of grandmothers from America, South Africa, India, China and Jamaica through dance, video, song and spoken word. Around the world grandmothers are the heart of every family, holding them together with love, hymns, blankets, recipes, lessons and memories. Thomas went on a personal exploration to learn about the grandmother he never knew and in the process he grew to appreciate the important role grandmothers play in every family and how similar they are around the globe.

Suzette Agans has lived in GHI for 3-years and currently serves as an appointed member of the GHI Board of Directors, filling-in for a Director who moved. Suzette's valuable experiences with the Woodlands and the Sustainable Design and Practices Committee, is proving useful on the Green Ribbon Task Force. Sheila Alpers 30-D Ridge Road

I moved to Greenbelt and the GHI cooperative in 1987. The thing that attracted me to Greenbelt was the large trees and the walking path around Greenbelt Lake. Over the years I have come to appreciate the closeness of this small community and its livability – a little jewel next to two major metropolitan areas. I have been active in GHI for many years. I think I started out on the Member and Community Relations Committee, and went on to work on the Newsletter committee, Nominations & Elections Committee, Audit Committee and ad hoc Management and Technical Audit Committee. For the past two years I have served on the Board of Directors and for the past 9 months have served as Treasurer and chair of the Finance and Investment Committees. We had many changes to the GHI Board in the past year, and there are other changes in the works that

Chuck Hess 8-E Research Road

A member since 1983, Chuck Hess became active in the affairs of the cooperative in 1994. He has served on the following committees: Architecture and Environment (now Architectural Review), Finance, Ad Hoc Resales, Investment and Audit

Chuck served 18 years as a member of the Board of Directors, six of those as Treasurer. He also served as Chair to the Investment Committee. Chuck has just returned to Greenbelt after working in Africa for the past year. Chuck is a C.P.A. and earned his M.S. taxation from American University.

Edward R. Hickey 54-M Ridge Road

I have lived in GHI for over ten years. During this time, I have served on the Architecture and Environment Committee and am currently Chair of the Architecture Review Committee. In addition, I am the Vice-Chair of the Greenbelt Public Safety Advisory Committee. I have also been active in the Warm Nights program for the homeless and as a youth advisor at my congregation.

In 1998, I retired from the Montgomery County Police Department where I was the Deputy Commander of the Germantown Station. As part of my duties, I was responsible for overseeing more than 100 patrol officers. After retirement, I was awarded a Masters Degree in Criminal Justice from the University of Maryland. Currently, I am an Associate Professor at PGCC.

Because of my extensive experience in public service, management, organization and conflict resolution, I believe I will be an asset to the GHI Board of Directors.

In 1968 my husband, Robert, and I moved into GHI with our young son and daughter. I became active in the cooperative after my retirement 12 years ago from the position of Executive Director, Prince George's Red Cross. For a few transitional months I have been acting chair of the Communications Committee and the Architectural Review Committee. I seek reelection to the Board so that I may continue to make constructive contributions to ensure that GHI is fiscally responsible, responsive to member concerns, plans for a sustainable future and remains a wonderful

32-F Ridge Road

I have lived in GHI for 6 years. The Roosevelt center reminded me of the downtown plazas (that I so missed) of my native country. I wanted to live in a place where I could feel community.

I earned a Bachelor's degree in Biology, and a PhD in Sustainable Development. As part of my dissertation I worked in small villages asking what people wanted to ameliorate about their natural environment, and figuring methodologies that encourage people to change their behaviors toward sustainable ones.

I have served on the Woodlands committee for GHI and on the Forest Preserve Task Force for the City of Greenbelt. I am currently working for an educational game-design company. I write a monthly column on environmental issues and sustainable living, and look into environmental organizations to give donations from the proceeds of the games.

Please consider me as a candidate for the Board of Directors.

James Grant

19-C Ridge Road

James Grant's history in GHI goes back to his childhood. James' Great Grandmother, and Grandparents, Gus and Margaret Grant, lived in GHI since the 1950s and James moved here with his parents when he was just 2. After moving away James came back to visit his grandparents regularly at their home in 19 Court and for the past 3 years has been living in that same home with his own family. After a career in finance, James has found his true passion in real estate and with his wife Raylene has started the very successful Grant Real Estate Group. James' love of Greenbelt and GHI runs deep and as a member of the Audit Committee James will be able to use his financial knowledge, strong leadership skills and fundamental knowledge of how to run a business to its fullest potential to serve this great community and its members.

I have been living in GHI since 1979. After retiring a few years ago, I began attending board meetings and became a regular member of the audience. In 2004, I was elected to a position on the Audit Committee. On behalf of the members, I have attended and observed many meetings and workshops and have worked to understand the regulations and the financial picture of GHI. I am very interested in the operation of the Cooperative and hope to be able to continue working on the Audit Committee.

Museum Food Lecture Tuesday

The Greenbelt Museum will host a lecture by food historian Joanne Lamb Hayes on Tuesday, May 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center, Room 201.

Author of the books “Grandma’s Wartime Kitchen: World War II and The Way We Cooked” and “Grandma’s Wartime Baking Book: World War II” and “The Way We Baked,” Hayes will talk about the creative ways women met the challenges of cooking for their families on tight budgets and within the limitations of strict rationing guidelines during World War II. Both books will be available for purchase and signing.

For details call 301-507-6582 or email museum@greenbeltmd.gov.

Four Shillings Short At Green Man, Café

Martin grew up in a family of musicians and dancers and began studying the sitar at age 16 with a protégé of sitar maestro Ravi Shankar. The duo have been touring the US and Ireland since 1997. Their 2007 tour itinerary will include concerts from California to Maine.

Whiffleball Tourney Sought for Greenbelt

by Eli Flam

Whiffleball, anyone? Several teams are sought for a first-ever tourney at Braden Field in mid-September. Five players of whatever age or gender make up a team. Call Andrew Phelan at the Greenbelt Recreation Department (240-542-2194) by September 7.

The game is a fast-growing spinoff of baseball. Pegged for a triangular field with bases 40 feet apart, the double-elimination tourney here projects foul lines running 100 feet to a six-foot high fence. A pitcher 30 feet from home plate would arc in a baseball-sized plastic ball perforated on its upper half – dippy-doodle time!

In turn the batter – sporting a plastic bat – gets no called strikes (or balls). And a fielder can retire a runner by hitting him or her below the neck with a thrown ball.

Whiffleball spun into being in the 1960s. By now there’s a national championship whose commercial sponsor reported a top prize of $20,000 last year but most of the action is informal, in parks, backyards and tourneys like the one pitched for Braden Field.

Why play whiffleball? “Why do you breathe, why do you smile?” says an enthusiast in Utah (Hayden Seeley of Provo). And you can be competitive, he adds, if you know the basics.

Here, the emerging mantra is, “Don’t waffle! Go whiffle!”

Postal Workers Fight Hunger

The National Association of Letter Carriers conducts an annual food drive to help “stamp out hunger.” The food drive is Saturday, May 12 for one day only. Customers are asked to leave non-perishable items at their mailbox for their carrier to pick up and take back to the station to be consolidated and transported to area food banks. Last year 82,000 pounds of food were collected locally; this year the goal is 100,000 pounds.

The 2007 session of the Maryland General Assembly will be covered in detail as it developed from January to April under new Democratic Governor Martin O’Malley.

Upcoming events include a picnic at Schrom Hills Park on Saturday, June 9 and an evening at the Baysox in conjunction with the Gov. Oden Bowie Democratic Club of Bowie, on Friday, June 29. Tickets for the combined tailgate supper and game are available for a modest fee from Treasurer Sylvia Lewis at revs.lew@verizon.net or by calling President Ed Terry at 301-386-0762.

Bike to Work On Friday, May 18

Greenbelt members of the Washington Area Bicyclist Association and others will bike to work on Friday, May 18 as part of the nation’s largest “Bike to Work Day. Major Adrian Fenty, will address the crowd.

Alan Turnbull will lead the 12-mile convoy from Greenbelt to Freedom Plaza. Bicyclists should meet in Roosevelt Center by 7 a.m. The route will include a stop at Greenbelt Metro station and then the pit stop at the College Park City Hall. Riders can drop off at those two points. The College Park pit stop will have complimentary breakfast items, give-aways and chances for some bike-related prizes.

Register on the website <http://www.waba.org/>.

Questions may be emailed to Turnbull (email address is on website). T-shirts are available for those who register.

“Our purpose is to promote bicycling and increase awareness about the importance of reducing drive – alone commuting and improve air quality,” according to Nicholas Ramfos of C06.

Greenbelt Park: A Place to Camp

by Barbara Hopkins

Children are counting the days till the school term is over, gas prices are climbing "in anticipation of increased demand" and wardrobes are being transformed for warmer days ahead. Summer doesn't officially start until the summer solstice the third week of June but the traditional beginning of the relaxed days of summer occurs on the three-day Memorial Day weekend, May 26 through 28. Time to be thinking of summer vacations.

Greenbelters who seek a convenient, low-cost, no-hassle, no-traffic getaway to start the season need look no further than Greenbelt Park. According to the National Park Service reservation website, camp sites for tents or RVs are available for the Memorial Day holiday weekend. Leashed pets are welcome (if they can observe designated quiet hours from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m.).

The park offers nine miles of nature trails, ranging from the one-mile Blueberry Trail to the Perimeter Trail of just over five miles. The Perimeter Trail has re-opened with a new bridge after sustaining damage from a storm last fall.

There are also picnic areas, some with playground equipment and fields for playing sports. Guided activities are sometimes offered by the rangers.

Close to Metro

It is three miles (and on a bus route) to the Greenbelt Metro station for those who wish to go downtown. And close enough to home to take in Greenbelt's celebration of Memorial Day – or to run back for a forgotten item.

According to a camper from the Norfolk area, "there are plenty of deer" and the park is also lively with birds and squirrels. He reported the washroom facilities as adequate but the peace and quiet "can't be beat." He said the same for the fee. This same camper, here during some of the area's warmest weather last summer, said the night air cooled enough that he was comfortable sleeping in his tent.

Peaceful

The park campground as a peaceful place was an idea echoed by a pair of campers from Quebec, Canada. Carole Caferriere had camped at places with more amenities – and more people – but she and her companion were impressed with the atmosphere and the nature at Greenbelt Park. And the ranger makes frequent patrols, she said, giving a feeling of safety. The couple used their camp as a base for exploring the sites in Washington, D.C. She said they would definitely come back.

Each camp site in Loop C (for tents only) is permitted two vehicles, three tents and a maximum of six people. Check-out time is noon. For more information on camping in Greenbelt Park, visit the website at www.nps.gov/gree/. For reservations, visit www.recreation.gov/ or call 1-877-444-6777.

Woman Shot, Gunman Dies

by Mary Moien

The first sign to most Greenbelt residents that something was terribly wrong last Saturday morning was the convergence of numerous police cars on Canning Terrace in Greenbelt East. Then, out came long lines of yellow police tape that kept residents in their homes for hours or out of their homes for most of the day. Residents and voyeurs gathered at the intersection of Canning Terrace and Greenbelt Road during the day to try to see what was happening.

Greenbelt Police Spokesperson MPO George Mathews reported that a woman had been shot in the arm during an altercation with her husband that morning. She escaped from the house and a neighbor helped her. She was transported to Prince George's Hospital Center. Her husband Junior Anthony Bennett, 44, then barricaded himself in the home in the 8200 block of Canning Terrace.

Greenbelt Road remained open during this standoff. As people continued to drive along Greenbelt Road, many were startled to see police in riot gear with rifles at the ready climbing along the edge of the road or peering through wooden fencing into backyards. The roadway into the development was completely filled with police cars, fire trucks and even the armored personnel carrier owned by the Greenbelt police.

Police, including a swat team, played a waiting game and apparently were able to contact Bennett. However, hours passed and when police broke into the house, Bennett was found dead of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Café Reviews Problems, Future Needs with Council

by Mary Moien

The Greenbelt City Council held a worksession with the board of the New Deal Café on May 2. Peter May, the new president, and David Ziegler, board member, represented the New Deal Café. The city has a vested interest in the Café because the Café rents the kitchen in the Community Center to prepare some of its food. There has been significant turnover of management and board at the Café and the financial status is precarious. In addition, the board is seeking a change to the Café's liquor license to allow alcohol service in the outdoor eating area.

Financial Status

May described the finances of the Café as "not going well." He summarized a number of issues. The management of the Café is in a state of flux. The manager resigned and there was no bookkeeper for a number of months. A new business manager was recently hired but only stayed one week. They are in the process of trying to reconcile the books enough to file their taxes, for which they have requested an extension. Unbeknownst to many members, a line of credit had been taken out last summer and the Café had been "coasting along" on the line of credit. That has ended. The Café has $2,500 in its checking account and the $3,500 rent was due on the first of May. May did add that there was $700 of credit card charges that are available.

A replacement chef hired recently had just given notice and left, citing problems working with a volunteer staff, adding that she "can't save a sinking ship." There is talk of cutting back some hours, especially early breakfast hours which are not profitable. In Fall 2005, the New Deal doubled the size of the Café when it took over an adjacent space but did not have a business plan to address the need for more income to cover the expansion.

Plans

May indicated that the board had recently sent letters to the membership calling for two emergency meetings in late April. Members are committed to keeping the New Deal open and alive. They are in a "survival mode" and working on plans to turn the financial situation around. He mentioned that $7,000 had been stolen from the Café a few months ago and that amount could have helped them through these bad times.

This summer the Café will be a drop-off spot for a Community Supported Agriculture venture. People who have bought shares in a farm fruits and vegetables program will come to the New Deal weekly to pick up their share. They will be new potential customers. The new board is working hard to come up with ideas to increase the number of daily customers. May mentioned the success of a "cartoon pajama brunch" and hopes to find new activities. Councilmembers suggested the idea of having a cover charge, even a small one, for nights with entertainment. They commented on people who stay for a long time watching entertainment, don't buy anything and don't vacate for paying customers.

Liquor License

Due to the death of a board member whose name was on the liquor license, the New Deal must apply to the county liquor board to change the license. Since this application is expensive, the board was hoping to apply at the same time for a change to the license to allow them to serve beer and wine in their outdoor area. The outdoor area is part of the space they rent from the Roosevelt Center owner.

Mayor Judith Davis had an immediate negative reaction to this request. She commented that no one from the New Deal is currently enforcing who is sitting in their outdoor seats. She stated they "have had a homeless person camped out there for a year" and nothing has been done. She was against liquor for the New Deal from the start and "definitely" is against outside drinking.

Councilmember Leta Mach commented that she had been to a Roosevelt Center merchants' meeting recently and they thought a fence around the space and alcohol would be okay. There would be a stronger delineation of the Café's outdoor space than there is now. Councilmember Rodney Roberts indicated that he knew at least one merchant who was not in favor.

There was much discussion; Councilmember Ed Putens said he understands the need but is not ready to support it. He commented that the space would need to be closely monitored so that if a patron left a bottle of beer on the table, someone in the Center could not reach over and take it. Councilmember Konrad Herling felt that a fence could become an attractive nuisance. He added that if the Café had to hire more staff to monitor the alcohol, it could negate the profits.

There were a number of additional comments from council regarding the use of alcohol to save the Café and the need to keep the tables clean and free from leftover food (which attracts homeless). However, council then agreed that they would discuss their issue at the next meeting and potentially support the application for the changed liquor license with the firm understanding that the New Deal would not start serving liquor outside without the specific future approval of council.

Kitchen Lease

The New Deal Café rents the kitchen in the Community Center from the city. There apparently had been an incident with staff from the Café leaving the oven on at the end of the night. It was discovered by city staff. This was a really serious incident. Putens stated that if this happens again "you'll never have my support again." The city staff stated that new procedures are in place and the Café has increased its insurance.

The Café has a debt to the city for previous use of the kitchen and a lease for the current use of the facilities. Citing the financial problems, the city is approving a new lease with the Café until the

Patuxent Celebrates Carson's Life

Wildlife expert and media celebrity Jim Fowler will be joined by wildlife friends as well as congressional and government officials in the centennial celebration of the birth of Rachel Carson – scientist, author and pioneer in the environmental movement. The public is invited to participate in a variety of events, including a 10 a.m. ceremony, followed by a day filled with activities on May 19 at the Patuxent Research Refuge's National Wildlife Visitor Center in Laurel. The celebration is sponsored by the U.S. Geological Survey, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Rachel Carson Council.

After the ceremony, families will be able to explore nature and stir a sense of wonder at programs and activities featuring live animals, hands-on activities, exploratory nature hikes, habitat tram tours and more.

There will also be an open house from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Rachel Carson Council, former home of Rachel Carson in Bethesda. For more information visit recouncil@aol.com or call 301-593-5707.

Displays highlighting Rachel Carson's life and past, current and future scientific research will be featured in the lobby of the National Wildlife Visitor Center from May 12 through the end of May. There will also be weekend films.

end of the year. The Café will pay the current lease amount and a small portion toward the debt owed, when feasible.

Some People Don't Smile in Pictures . . .

Ask yourself if any of these areas may be affecting the beauty of your smile:

- The color or shape of your teeth
- Spaces or missing teeth
- Noticeable cavities or old dental work
- Uneven or unhealthy gums

If so, come into the offices of the McCarl Dental Group for a complete and comprehensive evaluation.

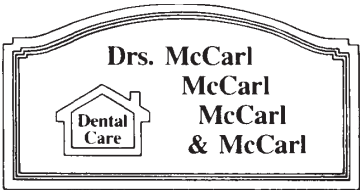

Nicole Burgess of Severna Park had severely discolored teeth from a very early age. Throughout her life, Nicole had been self-conscious of her smile. Outdoor Cleaning Reduces Mosquitoes

Residents in most areas of Maryland can anticipate the emergence of troublesome numbers of adult mosquitoes within the next two weeks.

“As the weather begins to warm, homeowners are reminded that their regular spring cleaning activities can help reduce mosquito populations” said Agriculture Secretary Roger L. Richardson.

Remove any buckets, cups, bottles, plastic bags, etc., that may have accumulated outside; clean roof gutters; check rain barrels to make sure they are completely screened; remove any old tires; fix dripping outdoor faucets; introduce fish to ornamental ponds; and make sure outdoor trash cans have tight-fitting lids.

For more information about Maryland’s Mosquito Control Program, call 410-841-5870 or go to Maryland Department of Agriculture’s website at www.mda.state.md.us.

Green Man Film Festival Highlights Environment

by Maggie Cahalan

This weekend, May 12 and 13, the Greenbelt Green Man Festival Environmental Film Fest will offer an exciting program of environmental films during the hours of 9 a.m. to noon and 3 to 7 p.m. As part of the Third Annual Greenbelt Green Man Festival, the Chesapeake Education Arts Research Society (CHEARS) invited several local community groups including Greenbelt – Climate Change Action Network (G-CCAN), Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group (BCWWG) and Prince George’s Peace and Justice Coalition to co-sponsor and collaborate in selecting environmental films to show during the festival at Roosevelt Center.

The films selected focus on exploring the global and local impact of human behavior on the world’s climate and eco-system and the challenges that current and future generations of plants, animals and humans will be facing in the years to come. Films were selected that focus on positive examples of groups and individuals working together to address these problems and turn the tide while there is still time.

Early Bird Films

The Early Bird films, shown from 9 a.m. to noon on both Saturday and Sunday in the Old Greenbelt Theatre in Roosevelt Center, will also offer a light breakfast of muffins, bagels, juice, coffee and tea. At 9 a.m. the festival starts with the “End of Suburbia,” exploring the American Way of Life and its prospects as the planet approaches a critical era as global demand for fossil fuels begins to outstrip supply.

This film is followed at 10:30 a.m. by “The Power of Community,” a positive and inspiring film that shows an example of how citizens of one nation, Cuba, responded by going organic and pulling together to deal with a crisis when suddenly faced with a cut-off of oil and other supplies following the fall of the Soviet Union.

The Saturday Early Bird films conclude with “Meet Your Meat” at 11:30 a.m., a short powerful film that documents the lives and deaths of 10 billion animals raised each year in the United States for meat, milk and eggs. The leader of the Indian non-violent independence movement Mahatma Gandhi stated: “The greatness of a nation can be judged by the way its animals are treated.” This film is a must-see for those seeking to understand how the animal-based food eaten every day in the United States is produced.

The Sunday Early Bird Films start off at 9 a.m. with the award winning local film, “We are All Smith Islanders,” produced by the Chesapeake Climate Action Network (CCAN). This special film explores how global warming is affecting agriculture, wildlife, health and tourism throughout our own Chesapeake Bay and describes what can be done about it.

“The Future of Food” follows at 10 a.m. and offers an in-depth investigation into the disturbing truth behind the unlabeled, patented, genetically engineered foods that have quietly filled U.S.

grocery store shelves for the past decade. The film also explores alternatives to large-scale industrial agriculture, placing organic and sustainable agriculture as real solutions to the farm crisis today.

At 11 a.m., selected sections of “Visions of Utopia” will be shown. This recently completed film gives a history of intentional communities in the US, including some shots of early Greenbelt, and an in-depth look at seven recent communities including Earthaven, a rural eco-village in North Carolina.

Tea Time Films

In the late afternoons on Saturday and Sunday the free film festival resumes with Tea Time films (tea and cookies being served) in a tent on the small green across from Curves. At 3 p.m. the film “An Inconvenient Truth” will be shown for those who had missed it. This Academy Award-winning film has served as a wake-up call that cuts through myths and misconceptions to deliver the message that global climate change is real and we must act now to save the Earth.

At 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, “The Great Warming Part I” will be shown.

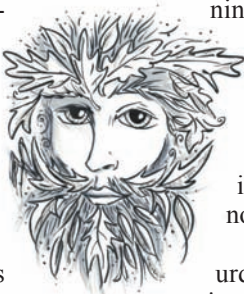

Filmed in eight countries on four continents, endorsed by dozens of the world’s leading scientists and major environmental groups such as the National Wildlife Federation, this film was selected because it gives important examples of innovative solutions about global warming and some reasons to be hopeful that we can turn the tide if we act now. This film is another must-see film for those concerned with finding workable solutions to climate change.

The film “Who Killed the Electric Car?” will air at 3 p.m. on Sunday. This film is a murder mystery like no other and unravels the puzzling demise of a vehicle that could have saved the environment and America’s dangerous addiction to oil. Part II of “The Great Warming” will be shown at 5:30 p.m. and will conclude the 2007 Green Man Environmental Film Festival.

The Green Man Festival Committee, CHEARS, BCWWG, G-CCAN and the Prince George’s Peace and Justice Coalition hope that people will take advantage of this free environmental film series. Most films to be shown have extensive web sites that can be accessed by typing in the name of the films.

These sites not only give more information about the films themselves but also include information about what citizens can do to help solve problems of global climate change and other environmental stresses.

More about the film schedule, as well as other Green Man Festival events can be found at <http://greenbeltgreenmanfestival.org/>. The Green Man Festival is co-sponsored by Friends of the New Deal Café Arts and was made possible in part by support from the Prince George’s Arts Council and Prince George’s County. Puppet Show Delights Crowd

by Jeremy Mohler

A crowd of about 100 parents and children watched Sunday, May 6 as Chinese Puppeteer Hua Hua Zhang brought her exciting and engaging puppet show to the Greenbelt Community Center.

Part of the Artful Afternoon series presented by the Greenbelt Department of Recreation on the first Sunday of each month, Zhang’s performance included extravagant Chinese puppets and props strewn about the stage. As the audience watched in awe from the center of the gym in the Community Center, Zhang moved about the stage giving life to the otherwise motionless hand puppets.

“We wanted to bring her in because her act is accessible to not only children but to all age groups,” said Nicole Dewald, the Greenbelt arts supervisor and one responsible for requesting Zhang to perform.

Zhang was born in Beijing, China, and by the age of 14 she was already training as a performer of the ancient Chinese form of rod puppetry. For more than 20 years she was the lead performer for the Beijing Puppet Arts Troupe and won numerous awards for her performances. A fluent speaker of English, Zhang moved to the United States in 1996 to study at the University of Connecticut.

The performance climaxed when Zhang, with a puppet resembling a dog on each hand, ran across the stage emulating the dogs interacting. Zhang describes her show as very much a sharing experience. “I plan my shows to be more intimate,” she said. With percussion instruments in hand, Zhang encouraged the crowd of many children to move to the beat of the drum at one point in the show.

But not all of Zhang’s performances are for such a small, interactive crowd in an intimate setting. The staff, children and parents that caught her performance at the rather large Puppet Showplace Theatre in Brookline, Mass., in 2003 were “completely mesmerized.” This shows the variety and flexibility involved in Zhang’s puppetry.

Tent Caterpillars Are At Annoying Levels

One of the most visible signs of spring this year is the abundance of Eastern tent caterpillar nests. Typically there are one or two tents per tree; however, many trees this year are sporting multiple tents, causing residents to be concerned for the trees as the caterpillars eat all the leaves.

“Residents are noticing the nests and may experience an annoyingly large population of caterpillars in their yards in the next couple of weeks,” said Agriculture Secretary Roger Richardson. “While the Eastern tent caterpillar does eat the early leaves of trees and shrubs, the defoliation usually does little damage to trees and rarely do trees die from an infestation.”

The lack of damage is due to the timing not the severity of the defoliation.

Eastern tent caterpillars are native to North America, do little damage to the trees and their populations are eventually controlled by native predators, parasites and diseases and so there has been no statewide control program for the caterpillars.

access to NASA during the visit, gathered along Greenbelt Road at the edge of Cipriano Square. Shayna Skolnik of Ridge Road reports that the crowd of well wishers grew to approximately 30 people, including many former Britons. One spectator was decked out in British flags and was trying to teach his children how to sing “God Save the Queen,” the British royal anthem. “It was a very festive atmosphere,” says Skolnik.

corps who were denied access to the event due to strict British security protocols and the deadline for applying already past also gathered on the corner at Cipriano Square. Those NASA employees not admitted to the auditorium presentation and other spectators, most with cameras in hand, had to be content with glimpsing the queen in a bright, wide-brimmed yellow hat and matching coat on her short walks between buildings.

CITY OF GREENBELT NOTICE OF A PROPOSED REAL PROPERTY TAX INCREASE

The City Council of the City of Greenbelt proposes to increase real property taxes.

- For the tax year beginning July 1, 2007, the estimated real property assessable base will increase by 12.8%, from $1,447,493,049 to $1,632,994,820.
- If the City of Greenbelt maintains the current tax rate of $0.766 per $100 of assessment, real property tax revenues will increase by 12.8%, resulting in $1,420,944 of new real property tax revenues.
- In order to fully offset the effect of increasing assessments, the real property tax rate should be reduced to $0.679, the constant yield tax rate.

The City proposes to adopt a real property tax rate of $0.786 per $100 of assessment. This tax rate is 15.8% higher than the constant yield tax rate and will generate $1,747,304 in additional property tax revenues.
